Academic Departments Develop, Add Programs to Curriculum

Legal Program Responds to Need

To respond to the needs of the legal community, Avila College has developed a Legal Assistant Program thru the Department of Business and Economics.

Kathryn Kelm, Legal Assistant Program Coordinator, said the legal assistant career is a growing profession and active in the community thru the Kansas City Association of Legal Assistants.

"The job market seems to be good. Beginning yearly salary ranges between $12,000 and $15,000," said Mrs. Kelm.

She emphasized that law firms will employ only top caliber graduates who maintain a high grade point average throughout their college career.

Students in the program specialize in one of three areas: Corporations, Estates and Trust, or Litigation. Practicing lawyers and legal assistants teach the specialized courses which are offered from 5:40-8:00 p.m., Monday thru Thursday.

The department has applied for American Bar Association approval.

For additional information, contact Mrs. Kelm, 942-8400 Ext. 207.

Social Sciences Provide Corrections Specialization

A new program offering a baccalaureate degree in corrections will begin this fall semester thru the Department of Social Sciences.

The coursework will provide the student with necessary training to begin a career in corrections after graduation.

The program has been approved by the Coordinating Board of Higher Education and is geared to persons who are not already working in corrections or law enforcement.

There is an increasing need for people to work in correctional institutions; both adult and juvenile facilities, said Dona Neuman, department chairperson.

For further details, contact Dr. Jack Klempner, Ext. 242.

Weekend Courses Involve Current Topics of Interest

Courses in public administration, legal studies, women studies, gerontology and social work will be offered during weekend time slots this fall.

The courses bring participants up-to-date and involve current topics of interest.

Weekend classwork offers Avila students and members of the community more flexibility with scheduling. The most popular classes are women and gerontology studies, said Dona Neuman, chairperson of the Department of Social Sciences.

Depending on the course's number of credit hours, classwork may focus on one or two weekends. Classes begin on Friday afternoon and continue all day on Saturday.

Contact Dona Neuman, Ext. 248, for additional information.

Allied Health Offers Cytotechnology Program

New this fall is the Cytotechnology Program which is offered thru the Department of Natural and Allied Health Sciences and Mathematics.

The cytotechnologist is concerned with the study of cells and is trained to recognize those minute abnormalities in the size, shape, and color of cell substances that may signal the presence of cancer.

The program was developed for the hospital-trained, registered cytotechnologist leading to a Bachelor of Science degree with an emphasis in management or education for career advancement.

Beginning freshman may complete all college requirements for admission to a 12 month clinical setting during the junior year and return to campus for degree completion.

Contact Karen Komer, Ext. 254, for further details.
